Country Correspondence Awards Increased To $1,000

Contest Conducted By The Country Home Magazine

New York, April 14.—Due to increasing national interest in the annual contest conducted by the Country Home Magazine to find the champion country newspaper correspondent of the United States, the awards for 1938 have been raised to $1,000, according to an announcement by Wheeler McMillen, editorial director of the magazine.

Of this sum the national champion will receive $600, an all-expense trip to New York and Washington, and in addition will be a guest of honor at the annual convention of the National Editorial Association at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

Another innovation this year will be the award of a Certificate of Merit to the champion correspondent of each of the 48 states. This has been arranged with the assistance of the N. E. A., which will cooperate with the magazine and will make it possible to recognize ability to a wider extent than previously.

In appealing to all country newspaper editors to see that their leading correspondents are entered in the contest, Mr. McMillen pointed out that the awards were started in the belief that there are hundreds of men and women in rural areas who do as fine a job of reporting in their local papers as many famous reporters do on big city dailies. He added that this belief has been fully justified by the results of the contest in previous years.

The rules of the contest, and the additional awards, follow:

Only country correspondents of newspapers published in a town of ten thousand people or less, a country correspondent is defined as a rural contributor whose major occupation is not writing.

All material submitted must be in the form of clippings with the name and address of the correspondent, the name and address of the newspaper which carried the item, and the date of publication plainly written in the margin or attached to each clipping.

The date of publication must be between May 15, 1937, and May 15, 1938. Entries will be accepted from the United States and Canada.

Entries must be marked as submitted in one or two classes: (Please turn to page 8)

Delta Boy Scout Annual Camporee May 6th and 7th

Plans Announced For Annual Meet To Be Held At Dockery, Mississippi

Plans have just been announced by the Delta Boy Scout Council for its annual Camporee which will again be held at Dockery, Mississippi, on May 6th and 7th.

According to Dr. H. C. Green, of Clarksdale, Chairman of the Activities Committee, this will be the high point in the year's program and as it will be conducted entirely on a patrol camping basis it is expected that they will have the greatest boy participation in the history of the Council.

All phases of camping will be judged, including the method of carrying equipment, the location of camp site, the layout of the camp, camp sanitation, food and its serving and the many other features that go toward enabling boys to camp comfortably and safely.

In addition to the camping phase of the program, there will be events in signalling, first aid, fire building, fire by friction, chariot races and other events of a like nature. These will also figure in the scoring.

Awards will be made to patrols on the basis of A, B, and C standard ratings. Patrols will qualify for an agreed standard of proficiency instead of competing against each other. In other words, they will "try to best par."

REFUGEE YOUTH WRITES PRAYER EXTOLLING U. S.

New York (IPS).—A 14-year-old boy refugee from Germany has written a prayer to express his happiness over being granted entry into the United States.

The boy, Martin Marden, escaped to the United States with his mother last year. The New York superintendent of schools has recommended that every American read the youth's prayer. It follows in part:

"One day in the year should be reserved for prayers of thanksgiving in which we give thanks for something that has been granted us; for having been saved from some great destruction caused by nature or man.

"I am thankful that I have been given an opportunity to be educated in the United States of America.

"I am thankful that I live in a land where, regardless of race, everyone may take part in national ceremonies.

"I am thankful that I live in a country governed by democracy, rather than force.

"I am thankful that I live in a land where one is not persecuted.

"I am thankful that I have been given the opportunity to enjoy the many privileges that are unshared in European countries.

"I am thankful that I have been given the opportunity to realize my ambitions which would have been impossible had I remained in my native land.

"I am thankful that I live in a land where the future seems bright and hopeful, rather than dark and hopeless.

"I am thankful that I live in a land where the youth of all races have a tomorrow, rather than in my native land where youth is without a tomorrow.

"I am thankful that I am happy and free."

Guest For Child Health Day, May 5

Word comes from the State Department of Health that either Dr. Underwood or one of his representatives will visit Grenada May 5 to participate in the local May Day program. Let us all unite in extending our state health supervisor a hearty welcome and give him the assurance of our interest in child health.

The net proceeds from last year's tag sale amounted to less than $30.00. Part of this was spent for treatment of an endemic first-grade child that has been reported greatly improved, and with better school attendance. Aid was rendered other pre-school children who, otherwise, would have gone with physical defects not corrected.

Plans for our celebration include a morning parade and an afternoon program, culminating in the crowning of King and Queen of Health. Mark May 5 on your calendar and plan to make it a day given to the advancement of child health.—Chrm. Child Health Day Com.

Large U. S. Scale Testing Truck Here Thursday

Engineer-in-Charge Welcomed Everywhere Visited In The State

A large scale testing truck, weighing 20 tons was in Grenada Thursday testing large scales for weighing cotton, fertilizer cotton seed, etc.

Fifteen weights, weighing 1000 pounds each, as well as smaller ones weighing less than a gram are a part of the equipment. The weights are lifted down to the ground by a crane and moved about by a small two-wheeled truck, hand operated. The large truck is equipped with fifteen forward and six reverse gears, besides the gears that operate the crane, six rear wheels and carries 100 gallons of gas. A gallon of gasoline is consumed every three miles.

Mr. C. F. Horton, engineer-in-charge of the truck said that he had been welcomed everywhere he had been in the state and that the U. S. Bureau of Standards had been on the road for one and a half years. He stated that he had visited all the Atlantic coastal states and that it would take about four years to complete the work. Mr. R. W. Crouch, Jr., assists Mr. Horton in the work.

The writer witnessed the testing operations at the Grenada Oil Mill and heard Mr. J. B. Perry, Sr., president, say that he was more than glad his scales were being tested as he bought by weights on his scales as well as sold by them.

Mr. Horton stated that four out of five scales tested were found to be inaccurate and when adjustments could be made to correct the inaccuracies he and Mr. Crouch would make them but when repairs were necessary they would be taken care of by scale service men.

It was necessary to secure the permission of the state highway department to operate the truck over Mississippi highways. The truck goes north from Grenada and then to Greenwood. In order to reach Greenwood it will be necessary for them to go by highway 51 to Memphis and then back down highway 61 to Greenwood.

Mr. Clyde of the state department of agriculture is accompanying the truck in this territory.

9,000 Open Cases of Tuberculosis Exist Among Negroes of The State

Warning that approximately 9,000 open cases of tuberculosis exist among the negroes of the state, Dr. D. L. Anderson, field clinician of the State Sanatorium says the control of the disease in this race is our greatest tuberculosis problem and should command the immediate attention of every white family.

"About one million negroes live in the state," Dr. Anderson said, "and of this number at least 500,000 are working as employees for white people. Thousands are employed as servants and, as such, are in intimate contact with our children who are so susceptible to tuberculosis."

"The work of these colored domestics is chiefly in and around the house, and it keeps them in very close contact with the family group, especially with the children of the household. If such a worker becomes sick with tuberculosis, all members of the household automatically come into close contact with the disease and such exposure is liable to produce consequences of the gravest sort."

"We have proof that the exposure of a far-advanced case of tuberculosis to a child for a period of a few days can result in the death of the child. A glaring illustration is that of a woman suffering from

Garden Club Sponsors School Garden Project

Miss Niece Pope, a Former Teacher in Grenada School, Guest Speaker

(Editor's Note): Since the following article concerns a former teacher of Grenada Elementary School, it is interesting to her friends here. It was copied from the March issue of The Clinch County News, Greenville, Georgia, where she is now teaching.

Miss Niece Pope, who is the teacher of the second grade at the local high school, was the guest speaker at the regular monthly meeting of the Garden Club, Wednesday afternoon, March 9. Her subject was based on Including the Child in an Active Manner, in the Life of the Community. She stressed the importance of training the child for good citizenship by permitting him to contribute in some measure to community life.

After explaining the theory to the club, the speaker told in detail how it might be given practical use through the medium of the Garden Club. She proposed to organize a gardening project for the primary grades, each grade to have a plot somewhere on the school campus for cultivation under the direction of the teacher.

The Garden Club would sponsor the project by lending its moral support. Since part of the method of teaching the children to be good citizens is teaching them to use the things about them, Miss Pope asked no financial backing from the club. She asked that members contribute excess flower plants and seed, particularly the flowers that would bloom by the time school is out in June.

The Garden Club accepted the plan unanimously, being glad of the privilege of sponsoring it. Already the ground is being broken and all members are urged to contribute their plants and seed sometime next week.

9,000 Open Cases of Tuberculosis Exist Among Negroes of The State

Warning that approximately 9,000 open cases of tuberculosis exist among the negroes of the state, Dr. D. L. "About one million negroes live in the state," Dr. Anderson said, "and of this number at least 500,000 are working as employees for white people. Thousands are employed as servants and, as such, are in intimate contact with our children who are so susceptible to tuberculosis."

"We have proof that the exposure of a far-advanced case of tuberculosis to a child for a period of a few days can result in the death of the child. A glaring illustration is that of a woman suffering from tuberculosis who visited her neighbor and slept with a three-year-old child for only one night. Within two months, the child died with tuberculous meningitis."

"In order to prevent the spread of the disease by servants, every colored person employed in the home or school, particularly those servants in care of children and those who prepare the food for the family, should have an examination and X-ray. It seems timely to state that most cases of tuberculosis cannot be found by a physician employing the usual methods, and only by an X-ray properly made and properly interpreted can the early cases be located."

"There are many reasons why Mississippians should see that the negro problem receives special attention," Dr. Anderson continued. "In the first place it is sound practice to concentrate control measures where the problem is most acute. Secondly, there is the humanitarian appeal. The negro must still look to white people for the solution of most of his problems. And thirdly, community protection demands it."

In conclusion Dr. Anderson stated that the control of tuberculosis in any community can only be brought about when all sources of infection receive equal attention.

SUPT. VANDIVER EXPRESSES HIS APPRECIATION

I wish to express to the Legislature and the Governor the very sincere appreciation of the members of the State Department of Education and other school leaders of the state for the very constructive school legislation enacted during the recent session of the Legislature.

In our biennial report to the Legislature, definite recommendations were made in regard to needed legislation for the schools. These recommendations were divided into five groups. Four of the five recommendations were carried out. The only recommendation made which was not enacted into law was the revision of our teachers' certification laws.

We feel that the Legislature and the people of the state, generally, have confidence in our school program and wish to assure them that the school people of the state desire to render the most efficient service possible.

We also wish to express our appreciation to the school people and citizens of the state for the very fine spirit of cooperation which has made possible the most successful legislative program for schools in the history of the state.

We are asking for your continued cooperation so that the efforts made may result in the proper functioning of our schools and the development of a better enlightened and more useful citizenship for the future.

Home Building Upturn Forecasts Recession End

(By Bernard L. Johnson, Editor "American Builder")

The current dramatic increase over last spring in new home financing, coupled with the equally spectacular showing of current home building contracts being let, gives weight to the thought that the small construction industry, active on a nation-wide scale, may this year again, as in 1920, prove to be "the Moses" to lead general business up out of hard times.

Many will recall that back in 1920 and '21 it was home building that pulled the country out of a major depression. Late in 1920, business in this country went into a tailspin with one of the worst depressions in history in immediate prospect. Late in 1921 it was apparent that despite general business conditions, home building was moving very rapidly ahead, and by 1922 this country was out of this depression, having been pulled up from the depths by reason of unprecedented home building.

History apparently is about to repeat itself.

Mortgages selected for appraisal by the regional offices of the Federal Housing Administration have, since the start of the FHA mortgage insuring program, proved a most reliable barometer of current and future residential building activity. The week ending March 26, 1938, established an all-time high of individual home projects, having a total mortgage valuation of $22,568,219. This was the fourth consecutive week that new all-time high records have been set, and the fifth consecutive week that 1938 volume exceeded that of the corresponding week of 1937.

This five-weeks period showed a total of over $94,000,000 in mortgages submitted to the FHA in 1938, a 32 per cent increase over $71,000,000 for the same period in 1937, a period then considered gratifyingly active.

These encouraging reports of the rising tide of small-home FHA mortgages preliminary to construction are further confirmed by current reports of residential contracts let, as compiled by the F. W. Dodge Corporation. The figures from this source show that the slump in home building contracts which started last June ran itself out in the last half of the year and reversed the downward trend with a 10 per cent upturn in February over January. Then in March that upturn has gathered momentum. Dodge contract figures for the first 3 weeks of March show a total residential volume for the 37 eastern states of $50,916,000, or only 14 percent less than for the same period last year, when homebuilding was getting off to a real "boom" start for the year—which boom, however, unfortunately ran into the public shocks to confidence in midsummer that effectively changed the plans of many home builders and home buyers in spite of rising rents and the growing shortage of desirable accommodations.

The growing volume this spring of home building contracts let and of mortgage commitments on new homes clearly indicates that the buying public is well satisfied with (Please turn to page 8)

DELTA AREA COUNCIL

BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA

The 1938 Legislature of Mississippi closed its legislative activities on Thursday of last week, recessing until Thursday, April 15, when by Resolution, the Speaker of the House and President of the Senate will formally adjourn the session sine die.

From time to time in the articles, I will undertake to give the readers of this newspaper the high points in some of the more interesting and important laws that have been enacted at this session, and today we touch upon the following:

Senate Bill No. 354 authorizes the acquisition, construction, improvement, operation and maintenance by counties or cities of bridges over rivers and navigable waters which are wholly or partly within the state, or form a boundary of the state; conferring the necessary powers upon such counties or cities, authorizing the issuance of bridge revenue bonds, payable from bridge earnings and to pay the cost of such bridges and improvements thereof. The object of this law is to enable counties or cities to build, improve and maintain such bridges and convert them into free bridges as early as possible.

House Bill No. 520 amends the Code of 1930 fixing the fees to be charged as additional compensation for services of circuit clerks in counties where there are two judicial districts.

House Bill 693 is a law authorizing cities, towns and villages ordinances relating to the remedying and elimination of dwellings unfit for human habitation. This means that when a municipality finds within its limits, dwellings unfit for human habitation, due to dilapidation, lack of ventilation, light or sanitary facilities, or dangerous fire conditions, etc. the said municipality is enabled to remedy these conditions or eliminate the building.

Senate Bill No. 166 provides for the establishment of public libraries and the funds for the maintenance and operation of same. These free public libraries may be established by counties or by municipalities, or they may be established by two or more counties where the boundary lines of said counties make it more feasible and convenient for such cooperation.

A Chemurgic Laboratory Commission is created by the provisions of S. B. 468, composed of the Governor, Commissioner of Agriculture and Attorney General, who shall serve without additional compensation and whose duties will be to conduct and carry out negotiations and cooperations with the Secretary of Agriculture and other agencies in securing for Mississippi the location of the Southern Regional Farm Laboratory.

By the terms and provisions of H. B. 176 and its companion bill making an appropriation of $150,000, with which to construct same, Mississippi is to have a War Memorial Building erected on the grounds of the Old Capitol, said building to be erected and dedicated to the memory of the veterans of all wars and the sons of Confederate Veterans. The Commission shall consist of the governor, lieutenant governor, attorney general and one member each from the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Spanish-American War Veterans and Sons of Confederate Veterans.

House Bill 735 provides for the reorganization of the State Tax Commission, and increasing and broadening the duties and responsibilities of the associate commissioners, by legally designating an ad valorem commissioner and defining his duties, and an excise commissioner and outlining his duties and responsibilities. The associate commissioners, instead of being appointed, one each from the two taxing districts as designated by Chapter 119 of the Laws

H. B. 365 provides for the creation of a legislative reference bureau as a part of the State Library, the purpose of the bureau to provide members of the legislature with constitutional information and accurate information, and reports concerning the problems with which they have to deal.

H. B. 449 empowers common or consolidated school districts, separate school districts, etc. to lease lands for oil, gas and mineral exploration, by and with the consent of the Mineral Lease Commission. Of 1932, shall be selected from the state-at-large, as well as the chairman of the commission, and one shall be an ad valorem commissioner and the other an excise commissioner. Instead of meeting just once each month and at other times on call, the commission under the provisions of the new law, will meet once each week and often on call of the chairman.

Senate Bill No. 161, cited in the new law as the "Highway Safety Patrol and Drivers License Act of 1938." Title 1 of this new law provides for the organization of the administration of the law, the appointment of a Public Safety Commissioner by the Governor, for a term of four years. The commissioner's salary shall be $4,000.00, and he shall devote his entire time to the office.

The Commissioner with the approval of the Governor is authorized to employ not exceeding 53 patrolmen, to be selected by an examination to determine their physical and mental fitness, knowledge of traffic laws, laws pertaining to arrest, etc. and shall be citizens of Mississippi, and of good moral character and not less than 25 years of age.

Salaries are fixed by law at from $200 per month for the chief patrol, $175 per month for the chief clerk on down to $125 for the patrolmen and $100 for the stenographer.

Other regulations are provided for under Title 1, all of which Title becomes effective on May 1st, when the system of a safety patrol will set up and become operative.

Title 2 of the Act set up the system of a motor vehicle driver's license and this does not become effective until on and after November 1, 1938, after which date it is provided that no person or persons shall drive a motor vehicle upon the public streets or highways of the State without securing an operator's license, except any that may be exempt under the provisions of the Act.

Among exempt, are: motor vehicle drivers for the Army, Navy, or Marine Corps; and those persons who are residents of another state or country, who have paid a license fee, or who are not required to be licensed. Operators of a road roller, road machinery or any farm tractor or an engineer of motorman using tracks for road or street, are exempt.

No operator's license shall be issued to the following: To persons under fifteen years of age; or whose license have been revoked or suspended, to an habitual drunkard or other narcotic drug addict; and those who cannot answer the mental or physical requirements of the Act. The fee as fixed by law, for receiving the application, examining the applicant and issuing the operator's license is 25c for each applicant, the fee to be retained by the person taking the application and issuing license.

An item of departmental interest is that relative to the department of Archives and History, in that its present able young director, Dr. Wm. D. McCain, has been very much in demand as a public speaker since he assumed duties of his office on January 1st. During the past few months, Dr. McCain has delivered by invitation several addresses before schools, colleges, service clubs and other civic bodies, these addresses having included those at Jackson, Brandon, Bay Springs, Tebula, Millsaps College, and other points in the State. When asked as to the subjects he used in these addresses, and whether he discussed the policies and plans of the Department of Archives and History or other subjects, the Director stated that unless special request was made his subject used is the policies and future aims of the department in order to make it of as much historical interest as possible to the people of Mississippi.

Do you want to SAVE MONEY?

The Standard Ford V-8, with 60-horsepower engine, gives you a lot of car for a little money.

300,000 new owners acclaimed the "thrifty 60" last year. Hundreds a day are buying it in 1938. Why?

Because it is priced low—includes essential equipment without extra charge—and goes farther between filling stations than any Ford car ever built. Owners all over the country report averages of 22 to 27 miles on a single gallon of gasoline.

But economy isn't all the story by any means. The Standard "60" is built with the same precision as the De Luxe "85," and has the same 112-inch wheelbase chassis. It is easy to look at and ride in—as well as easy to buy and run. There's a Ford dealer near you.

On Thursday of last week the House began consideration of the Bill. Near the end of the week the House refused to limit debate, so the matter carried over until this week. Up until Thursday there had been much debate and many concessions made by the House Committee trying to steer the Bill to passage. For instance, there were agreements to exempt the Veterans Administration and the Bureau of Education from interference by the President and his assistants. As indicated in this column last week at one stage of the proceedings the President found it advisable to deny that he wanted to be a dictator. On Thursday of this week there was a determined effort made to kill the bill by striking out the enacting clause, but this failed by a margin of 22 votes. This majority was completely lost on Friday night when the House killed the entire bill by sending it back to the Committee on Reorganization by a vote of 204 to 126.

The efforts to begin the investigation of the Tennessee Valley Authority did not get off to such a flying start. A joint committee of ten members was appointed from the House and Senate, but Senators Borah and McNary, Republicans declined to serve. Two other Senators, after some delay, were selected to take the place of the unwilling. But it is not known definitely whether they will serve.

Thursday saw the beginning of consideration in the Senate of the new Federal Tax Bill, recently reported from the Senate Committee on Finance. The Senate was in session late Saturday (as this was being written) but had not yet passed the bill. On Saturday the Senate refused to accept the amendment of Senator Pope, of Idaho, proposing processing taxes.

On Saturday night, the club women and their families, with other friends, gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Gilson and enjoyed another old-fashioned square dance.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Tharpe and son, Earl, Jr., and Mrs. Annie Tharpe attended church at Grayport Sunday. They were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jess Henson.

Don't forget to come to Gore Springs (tonight) Friday, April 15th and enjoy the senior play.

Rev. McKibben, of Dunk Hill, filled his regular appointment at Gore Springs Sunday to a large audience. He was a dinner guest of Mr. and Mrs. Howard James.

State College. Many people do not realize that celery can be cooked as well as served raw.

While it is valued highly for its flavor and crispness as an accompaniment or chopped up in salads, the cooked flavor is also pleasing. If very little water is used and if what liquor cooks out of the celery is served with it, seasoned and slightly thickened if desired, no food value is lost.

Celery is also good cooked in combination with tomatoes, turnips, or carrots. The stalks and tops may be chopped to give flavor to meat or poultry stuffings. Dried celery leaves keep well and make good soup seasoning.

The meeting opened with the singing of several club songs. The club voted to take part in the Better Homes Campaign, April 24-30, and also to enter the 5-year Better Homes Plan. Plans were discussed for a party and Home Talent night.

Miss Wood awarded the club a prize of $10.00 from the Chamber of Commerce for having the best poultry record in the county last year. She also gave a very interesting report of her recent two weeks' study at Mississippi State College under a TVA specialist.

The club enjoyed an April Contest and Mrs. Brunson, the winner, received a novelty tape measure.

The club enjoyed several games under the leadership of their recreational leader, Mrs. R. S. Davis.

At the conclusion of the meeting the club showered Mrs. Staten, their hostess with a number of useful and attractive gifts for her new home.

The hostesses served delicious home made ice cream and cake.

EASTER REFLECTIONS

(Reproduced from The Sentinel of March 29, 1929)

Sunday, next, March 31, will be more or less observed by the Christian world as the day which marks the anniversary of the Christ coming up out of the grave, of resurrection day.

No race of people in all the world's history has been without some sort of religion.

Call it what you may, there is an anxiety, a reaching out, a hope, a faith that when life's fitful fever is over, there is prepared a happier and an enduring abiding place somewhere, the knowledge of which rests alone in some supreme being, or as the Christian devoutly believes, in the bosom of God, and those who have had their sins washed away and are now on the opposite side of Jordan's stormy banks.

Life would be but sounding brass if this world were all of it. Indeed Solomon's words, spoken when he was in the low grounds, would haunt us daily "all is vanity and vexation of spirit", and make living a thing of utterable woe if this life were the beginning and the end. But later, and when the spirit of contrition and a recognition of his own limitations and unworthiness obsessed Solomon, he gave utterance to the words which have rung down the centuries like a clear bell in the skies and which have served to make multiplied millions to take their own reckoning and to make men and women new creatures in Christ Jesus, "Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth". Still later, and when he thought perhaps that he was nearing the end, he summed up the whole thing and gave it to the world as a never fading or never flickering sunbeam, "Hear the conclusion of the whole matter, fear God and keep his commandments for this is the WHOLE DUTY of man".

Religion is the exercise of faith, faith in something not seen. The Christian religion is faith, expectations, realized. The Christian religion is love in action.

The world has its celebrations. The anniversaries of battle are celebrated. The birthdays of great leaders are appropriately recognized. The anniversaries of the beginnings of humanitarian movements are fittingly commemorated, but there is no day that can or does mean as much to humanity as that of the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

Thus it is that humanity may regard Easter as a day of assurance, as a day that pledges our Creator to take us home to him when our journey here is ended. It is a day that opens wide all the windows of the Celestial City from which voices tender, loving and true are beseeching those left behind to join them there. It is a day that proves that the grave shall not be an eternal resting place. Christ conquered death when he broke the bonds of the grave. Christ, by permitting himself to be crucified and his body to be laid beneath the sod as is the way of all humanity, furnishes the very strongest possible assurance or pledge that it is not all of life to go halting and stumbling through this world.

The death of Christ and his burial is the very strongest possible proof or pledge that God has demanded nothing of his creatures that he did not endure or undergo himself. We are often disturbed, many, many, many times grievously distressed, and perhaps think that our lot is a hard one, but Jesus was ever more disturbed and distressed. He had no place he could call home while upon the earth. He had not a place of his own to lay his head. Could there be anything sadder or more heartrending than his agony in the Garden of Gethsemane? What can be supposed to have run through his mind after his arrest and when he was being carried before men who claimed to have the right to try him? Think, for one moment, how his body suffered when he was being made to carry the cross upon which he was to be nailed, there to bleed and die? What must have been the terror of his soul when he spoke the words that for the moment indicated that he was wondering if his own father had deserted him?

So desperately in earnest, so concerned, was Jesus about saving the world from sin, that when he went away he sent the Comforter to walk with us, to talk with us, to admonish us and to show us the way in all doubtful situations. He was not satisfied to leave the world alone even after his sojourn here.

Hence it may be said that, from a human viewpoint at least, God, when he promised the Holy Spirit, thought that he was exhausting his last remedy to save men and women and to make sure that they enjoy that beautiful and happy abode provided for those who trust, love and fear him. "Fear", used in the sense God would have us understand it, is not the fear that men understand in their earthly relations.

Christ is risen. He ascended into heaven, but promised to come again, and is coming to those who will allow him or who seek him every day. He rose from the grave. He brought others up out of the grave. He furnished unimpeachable evidence that man "shall live again".

May Easter 1929 bring us nearer a proper realization of our duty to God. May it push away any dark clouds and permit us to at least get a glimpse of that radiant grandeur and sublimity that is in store for those who strive to live right in Christ Jesus.

IS THIS JOURNALISM?

There has been in evidence in this country during the past few years a type of so-called journalists that substitute invective for reasoning and personal abuse for argument. Caught in a tight place they seek to cloud the issue by a personal attack upon their opponents. Many lesser lights in the journalistic field, admiring the type of writing, seek to copy it, but lacking the keenness of mind and the facile pen of their tutor they offend their reader more than they convince them.—Banner County Times, Canton.

DIMINISHING RETURNS

There is ample evidence that taxation in the United States has reached the point where the law of diminishing returns is operative. The shackles of excessive taxation need to be loosened, not tightened, but the federal government and almost all state and local units continue to search for fresh means of extracting money from helpless taxpayers.

The problem is so simple that even a run-of-the-mine politician could grasp it, if he ever could be induced to direct a little attention toward it. Business thrives and enterprise is stimulated when a reasonable part of the profits can be retained by the business men. If government exactions take an unreasonably large part of the returns of individual effort, that effort is blanketed and smothered.

WHAT A MISPLACED COMMA WILL DO

You had better stop and think before you go to sleep in a North Dakota hotel for you can be arrested for it.

Press dispatches tell us that the legislature of that state has just approved a law on hotel inspection, and a slip in punctuation made it read:

"No hotel, restaurant, dining room or kitchen shall be used as a sleeping or dressing room by an employee or other person."

The intention of the law is all right. It was intended to prevent sleeping in places where people cook and eat. The comma, after the word "hotel" should have been eliminated.

However, judges say it will require a legislative amendment to get rid of that comma.

LABOR AND THE PUBLIC

There is real significance in the facts recently revealed by a careful, dispassionate poll of a representative cross-section of Americans on the question of unrestrained activities of labor agitators and the unions they rule so dictatorially.

The poll, conducted by Fortune Magazine, showed a 3-to-1 majority recommending legislation to curb union rule of American workers and their employers.

To qualify the poll, it may be pointed out that it was conducted by the same investigators and in the same manner as the poll which two years ago was only 1 per cent in error in forecasting the plurality of Mr. Roosevelt in the presidential election.

Every State in the Union, every race, religion, and "economic class"; every classification of profession and labor and every political affiliation was included in the poll on this question of current importance.

It is not difficult to understand the sentiment expressed by those canvassed in the poll when one looks carefully at the record of labor unions in the last few years.

America is not designed to progress by such harsh methods. In fact, progress is reversed when violence is allowed to dictate our rights. That is why Americans overwhelmingly want it stopped.

THE PANACEA OF SPENDING

(From the New York Times)

Some fallacies die hard, and among the toughest is the belief that increased government spending necessarily means "increased purchasing power" in the country and therefore more "prosperity."

Experience, however, gives no reason for supposing that an unbalanced budget or a heavy Government spending program is either a necessity or an advantage in bad times. In 1921 we not only balanced our budget but actually retired the huge sum of more than a billion dollars in debt, yet we had a prompt and sharp recovery.

Yet the apostles of Government spending view the question in a crudely mechanical way. They persist in believing that the money spent by Government (at least that amount not offset by tax collections) must mean a net addition to the total spending (purchasing power) in the nation. But they forget that private incomes are not spent automatically, that new enterprises are not started automatically, that men are not employed automatically. Before these things are done, men must have confidence; and if the Federal budget should become more hopelessly out of balance than ever, the effect would probably be only to undermine confidence still further.

Government spending, instead of "bridging the gap," would in that case only widen the gap. Confidence can be restored only by reforming the tax laws and by other changes in legislation and in administration attitude as will indicate a genuinely sympathetic concern with the difficult problems of those upon whom the country must depend to employ labor and expand enterprises.

COMPETITION FOR COTTON GROWERS

Col. James Hammond, former publisher of the Memphis Commercial Appeal, banker and planter, has returned from an extensive tour of South America. He traveled more than 20,000 miles by automobile, visiting many of the large plantations in Brazil and other republics, talked with farmers, merchants and commission men, and arrived at the conclusion that the United States is facing competition in the production of cotton.

According to Col. Hammond, cotton acreage is being increased in all South American countries this year, and especially in Brazil, where large compresses and cottonseed oil mills are being erected.

More than this, Col. Hammond tells us that the cotton grown in South America is actually of a better quality than the cotton grown in Mississippi, Arkansas or Texas. It has a longer staple and a softer, silkier fiber.

It, therefore, appears that the South's monopoly of cotton is nearing an end, and that we must not only meet the competition of Egypt, but of the vast region South of us, where labor is cheap and cotton can be produced much cheaper than we can grow it here in the States, says the Times-Leader.

RUINOUS ENDS

It's time we looked at the railroad problem realistically. For there never was an industry which has suffered more manhandling under a system of regulation that is supposed to protect all interests concerned.

Today a staggering percentage of railroad properties are in the hands of receivers—because Federal regulation has consistently denied the lines a "living wage." All manner of proposals, largely of the crackpot variety, are being presented as solutions to the problem—though no one in an official position has offered the obvious solution, which is to allow the lines to charge rates that will pay costs and produce a profit.

It is argued that higher rates would divert traffic from the rails to other agencies—the theory that guided the ICC's recent decision allowing the lines but a small part of the 15 per cent increase requested, in spite of the fact that representatives of dozens of big industries supported the railroads' brief, and pointed out that the rate increase would be more than offset by stimulated railroad purchasing if the "living wage" were granted. But, it may properly be asked, what business is it of the ICC to theories? Instead, why should it not allow the full increase asked and try it out—then if experience proved that shippers would not pay the new rates, it would be time to try something else? The small increase granted may be compared to giving a starving man a little more, yet not enough, food. It simply staves off the day of death a little longer—it doesn't cure the patient.

This isn't a railroad problem. It is everybody's problem. We can't have good times in this country when our biggest single industry has to cut its expenses to the bone. We can't have confidence and faith when railroad securities—of which hundreds of millions are held by banks, insurance companies, universities, etc.—are tumbling down.

No one wants the railroads to fail. Few want government ownership, with its inevitable corollary of a staggering increase in taxes and public debt. But our indefensible railroad policy is bringing us steadily closer to those ruinous ends.

Train Crew Rescues Dog

Some farmer living between Bruce, Minn., and Ben Clara, S. D., has a fine collie dog today which he would not have had if it had not been for the crew of the Hawkeye, Illinois Central train 711.

On March 2 the crew of the Hawkeye on their regular run from Cherokee to Sioux Falls noticed a dog caught in a fence between Bruce and Ben Clara, but thought it was only momentarily entangled and paid no further attention.

On their return trip on train 712 that afternoon they saw the dog still in the fence, but they could not stop and release him because the fast meat train, No. 776, was close behind them. Next morning they anxiously awaited their arrival at the spot where the dog had been seen and to their dismay he was still struggling in the entangling wire, hanging by his right hind leg, his head and left ear just touching the ground. This time the instinctive love of men for a dog would not be denied; the train came to a halt and the entire crew (and most of the passengers who saw what was happening) dashed for the animal.

His release was a matter of seconds, but it was seen that his foot and leg were badly swollen. Conductor B. D. Johnson, Engineer H. M. Appleton, Fireman P. L. Van Atta, Baggageman D. E. Christenson and Express Messenger Crapner held a conference. No one wanted to turn the injured animal loose but no one knew what else to do with him.

Simultaneously the solution occurred to everyone—why not take him along? Forthwith the dog was packed into the baggage car and "deadheaded" to Sioux Falls, where he was cared for during the day and found not to be badly hurt. He was again taken aboard train 712 that afternoon and, when near the spot where he was found, was set down from the train with a note, written by Fireman Van Atta, pinned to his collar explaining what had happened.

The dog apparently knew he was near home, as he started off at once as though anxious to see how things had made out during his unavoidable absence.

Reading of the incident in the Cherokee Daily Times, Sydney H. Coleman, president of the American Humane Association, 50 Madison Avenue, New York, wrote Division Superintendent W. R. Gilliam, Waterloo, Ia., on March 14, saying he intended to bring the Hawkeye crew's act to the attention of the Medal Association in

Navy News and Facts

The local Naval Recruiting Station will be closed from April 12, 1938 to April 18, 1938.

Navy Men Trained To Be Soldiers
Many persons are unaware that members of the Navy are trained to be soldiers as well as sailors. All ships have a battalion which consists of every available man on board, including the Marines. Should any trouble arise ashore where the U. S. interest is in jeopardy, the battalion is sent ashore armed, equipped, and prepared for any emergency that may arise.

California Town Moved Westward
The U. S. Naval Observatory, by preliminary calculations states that San Diego, California, has moved 40 feet westward in the past seven years.

Training Cruise
Recently announced by the Navy Department, the battleships Texas, Arkansas, New York, the demilitarized battleship Wyoming and twelve destroyers will make the 1938 training cruises for Naval Reserve units of the Atlantic and Gulf Coasts.

Ship Surgery
A neat trick in ship surgery was done by England during the World War. Two of its destroyers of the same class—the Zula and Nubian—bumped into mines and were damaged beyond repair, the former losing her bow and the latter her stern. In the Navy Yard the ships were cut in half and the good bow of the Nubian was welded to the good stern of the Zula, and the "new" ship was named Sub-lan.

J. B. Bowen, who plays the part of Uncle George, is testing his adopted son, Eddie, played by Lee Rouse. Eddie has gone wild, and, in order to change his ways, Uncle George pretends that he has been burned up in a hotel fire. He left a will which gave all his money to Eddie and Judy, Uncle George's daughter, played by Juanita Trussell, providing they marry. If they don't marry well, come to see what really does happen. The relatives of Judy's friends provide a wonderful background for Eddie, Danny, and Irish cook played by Everett Chamberlain, falls for Della, a maid, played by Frances White.

Uncle Jim Says

The ever-normal granberry should help reduce big swings in market supply. Farmers, business men and consumers are better off in years of stable, adequate marketings than they are in alternating high and low years.

Washington, D. C., April 14—There are folks in the capitol today who say Huey Long died too soon—and they don't mean that he lost a chance at '36 but his great opportunity would have come now—in 1938. It's going to be—they say—a field day for the demagogues and they point to the resurrection of such groups as the followers of Coughlin. Widespread unemployment and millions of families existing on a "marginal" wage which barely covers scanty food and shelter and clothing, has made a fertile recruiting field for radical leaders.

Hence wary politicians are making no nationwide predictions on the outcome of election this year. Undoubtedly some Democrats will be defeated. Undoubtedly a few Republicans will lose their seats. Whether or not these reversals will be a simple change of parties or whether a third party candidate will win depends on how much faith the voters put in the promises of the various candidates.

Amid the hullabaloo of passing navy and army appropriations, the third anniversary of the founding of the air force GHQ slipped by almost unnoticed. Our air force is admitted by international experts to be second to none in quality and, according to plans in quantity. Unfortunately, only seven hundred officers are now on the rolls while the plans call for fourteen hundred by July first. While the enlisted personnel is within fifteen percent of planned strength planes themselves are lacking. A scant four hundred are doing the duty of twice that number.

As was pointed out by air force chiefs this week: The navy can't wait to build ships or the army to make guns until after a war starts but both can enlist and train men on short notice. The air force, however, must not only be ready with ships but with trained men to fly them. Before Congress ad-

Probably the greatest indication of the progress of America in the last three hundred years was the recent Indian trouble at Cass Lake, Minnesota, where, in the face of a Department of the Interior order to move the headquarters of the agency to Duluth—some thousands of Chippewa braves donned their war paint and bonnets, sharpened their hatchets and shrilled their war cries—and went on a sit down strike! And Washington gave in! Which must have made those old war chiefs, Sitting Bull and Roman Nose and Geronimo, turn in their graves!

PLANNING THE FOOD SUPPLY

Planned food production is an important project this year, states Miss May Cresswell, state home demonstration agent, at State College. Planting an adequate garden not only helps to provide a good supply of food, it also releases cash for other uses at the same time that it insures a good diet.

The Mississippi food supply budget has been worked out to include the kinds of food needed for a well-rounded diet which can be grown here. It also shows how much of each kind should be planted in order to have a well-filled pantry and storage cellar for next winter's needs. The size and habits of different families is taken into consideration, too, and changes in the general budget are suggested for different conditions. The vegetable garden does not take care of all the food needs. Fruit trees and vines enter into the picture, also poultry for eggs and meat, meat animals, and provision for milk and milk products. If the family has a definite plan for producing food, based on the actual requirements, the chances are good for an abundant food supply which will be sure to include enough of the important types.

OUR FOREIGN SALES ARE LIMITED BY OUR FOREIGN PURCHASES

"To the degree that the United States buys, it is able to sell." Foreign countries must have dollars with which to purchase United States goods. The principal way they get money is by selling us goods. As a result, the value of our imports and exports have followed each other very closely. Other ways foreigners can obtain dollars from the United States include loans by Americans to foreigners, services such as those rendered by foreigners to American tourists, and gold sent to the United States from abroad. With the exception of services, none of these items is a permanent source of dollars. Even in the case of services, the amounts involved have never been enough to substitute for imports of goods into the United States. During the 1920's, when our tourist expenditures reached a record high level, the net payments of dollars to foreigners for service items did not, in any one year, reach as much as 15 percent of our dollar payments for imported goods. In most years the percentage was very much smaller than that.

Newly Enacted Laws To Aid Development Modern Agriculture

Recent Progress Recognized and Continuation Spurred By Series of Authorized Agricultural Services.

Outstanding state progress in diversified agriculture, including sharply increased livestock production, more food and feed crops, increased shipments of fruits and vegetables, and notable tung oil plantings, is responsible for a series of new agricultural laws enacted by the 1938 Legislature.

In the instance of fruits and vegetables, for example, a new problem is involved in variety given to products marketed. Back in 1928 the movement of 7,068 carloads of fruits and vegetables consisted largely of cabbages and tomatoes. Recent developments have been towards more varied production, so that shipments of watermelons increased from 34 carloads in 1933 to 784 in 1936, while shipments of Irish potatoes increased from 130 carloads in 1933 to 963 carloads in 1937. The newly authorized fruit and vegetable experiment station will, it is thought be concerned not only with securing needed information as to variety, culture and fertilization, but also with the introduction of crops not now produced in commercial quantity.

The tung oil producing industry is largely centered in Mississippi where there are approximately 85,000 acres of tung trees—and about two-thirds the nation's total. There is reported a pressing need for information to answer cultural problems in this new industry, and such information is expected from the authorized tung oil experiment station.

Farm products shipped out of the state must be inspected and certified as to grade and quality if growers and shippers are to receive top prices. Thousands of carloads are inspected annually under a cooperative arrangement whereby growers and shippers bear the entire cost. This arrangement is regarded as satisfactory in areas of concentrated production, but is excessively expensive elsewhere. A new law authorizes year-round inspection of farm products and carries an appropriation so that costs will not be excessive, whether the movement be 100 carloads or a single carload.

"These new laws, together with another establishing four regional livestock shows, and still others not yet analyzed, clearly indicate the legislative response to the needs of modern Mississippi agriculture," stated J. C. Holton, commissioner of agriculture. "They will advance state progress toward diversified and profitable farming."

Gains last year in farms being served by the high lines throughout the Nation were roundly 200,000, which brings the total to 1,241,500, according to best figures. It is estimated that 250,000 additional farms are served by other sources.

Clubs are asked to report on the use of electricity in their poultry, canning, and other projects, or how it might be used; to give practical and economical reasons for the use of various electrical appliances; describe any activity like discussions on the farm use of electricity; submit a record of general 4-H activities; and describe electrical projects or activities on wiring and installation and care of appliances.

Awards are provided viz: gold medal for the best county report, all expense trip to National 4-H Club Congress for best state report, and college scholarships of $400, $300, $200, and $100 for the highest rating winners by Extension divisions, the donor being the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company. No fee or obligation of any kind is required of contestants.

NUTS IN THE MENU

"Nuts are a very concentrated food and are better used as an integral part of the menu than as a supplement to an already adequate meal," according to a recent publication of the Bureau of Home Economics, U. S. Department of Agriculture. In other words, rather than serve nuts to nibble, the homemaker might try the main dish with nuts in it, or one of the appetizing nut breads or nut desserts.

"Most nuts are extremely rich in fat" the leaflet points out. "The starchy chestnut is the one exception. The pecan contains over 70 percent fat; the Brazil nut, butter-nut, filbert, hickory nut, and Persian (English) walnut, over 60 percent. The eastern black walnut,

Miss Lottie Wood Studies Rural Electrification

Gives Valuable Laboratory Tested Recipes; Others To Appear Later

Miss Lottie Wood, Home Demonstration Agent, spent two weeks recently at State College studying Rural Electrification for the home. Miss Lenore Sater, Home Electrification Specialist, was in charge. The three laboratories were equipped with electrical appliances from several different manufacturers. To teach the selection, use and care of electrical equipment was the main object course.

The following recipes were tested in the laboratory, and others will appear in this paper from time to time:

Stuffed Eggs in Tomato Jelly
1 tbs. gelatin
¼ c. cold water
2 c. hot tomato juice
1 tbs. vinegar
1 tbs. sugar
6 hard cooked eggs
6 stuffed olives
1 tbs. prepared mustard, salt and pepper.

Soak the gelatin in the cold water and dissolve in the hot tomato juice. Add the vinegar and sugar and season to taste with salt and pepper. Place in refrigerator until partly set. Cut eggs lengthwise, in halves. Remove yolks and mash. Add salt and pepper to taste and chopped olives and mustard. Refill the whites and place in individual

EGGS IN WATER-GLASS

Surplus new-laid eggs may be put down in water glass at any time, if they are handled promptly. During the spring months, if more eggs are laid than can be used in ordinary ways, a supply may be put down for use during the season when prices are high, says Miss Eva Leggett, extension poultry specialist of Mississippi State College.

The eggs should be put down into water glass as soon as possible after gathering. It is a good practice to candle every egg and to discard cracked eggs using only the sound, clean, fresh, infertile ones. Even minute cracks may cause spoilage and contaminate other eggs in the jar.

To make water glass solution, boil 11 quarts of water, cool, and add 1 quart of sodium silicate (water glass) and mix well in a non-metal container previously cleaned, scalded, and dried. Most drug stores sell water glass. A 5-gallon crock will hold about 12 dozen eggs and leave room for at least 2 inches of water glass solution above the last layer. This is very necessary. As it is almost impossible to move the crock safely after the eggs are placed in it, it is best to decide beforehand where it is to be stored. The crock should be covered with a tight lid to prevent evaporation. Until the 12-dozen capacity of the crock is reached, eggs may be added whenever available. And eggs may be taken out at any time. If they are used for boiling, a small hole should be made in one end with a pin to prevent cracking.

almond, beechnut, and pistachio have over 50 percent; and the cashew, pine nut (Pignolia), and peanut have over 40 percent. Fresh cocoanut contains 35 percent fat. "Nut proteins are of good quality and nuts may make a useful contribution to the protein of the diet, but under most circumstances it is better to consider them as sources of fat rather than of protein and to use them interchangeably with other fatty foods such as butter, oils, cream, chocolate, and bacon."

Peanuts, Persian (English) walnuts, pecans and almonds are the four kinds of nuts produced on a commercially important scale in this country. The production of filberts is also on the increase, and there are many other nuts that grow wild or in small orchards. In addition, the United States imports considerable quantities of Brazil nuts from South America, cashews from India, and chestnuts, mainly from southern Europe. The title of the leaflet is "Nuts and Ways to Use Them," Misc. Pub. 302, and may be obtained from the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

When ready to serve, unmold the jellied eggs on a bed of lettuce. Serve with mayonnaise. The eggs must not be overcooked as consistency of whites will be too tough to combine well with jellied tomato. Serve six.

HOUSE BUILDING UPTURN

The values, terms and prices now prevailing in the new home field. They indicate a widespread eagerness on the part of families of small and moderate income to gain the independence of home ownership under present favorable conditions.

If there was any question as to need for easier home financing, or as to the probable response from the home-hungry public to a proposition for a smaller cash down payment with a longer time to pay off the balance monthly at a low interest rate, that question is being conclusively answered by the people themselves in their quick response to the new FHEA 90 percent, 35-year finance plan.

Last fall's "smoke screen" of propaganda, unloosed by interests then opposed to additional new home construction, to the effect that material and labor costs were "too high," is now clearing away as a result of the industry's united drive to acquaint the general public with the whole truth concerning costs and values being offered in the 1938 "more house for the money." The success of this building industry effort to correct the public's false price-thinking is reflected in the current building reports. Evidently the home-seeking public is about to take advantage, on a nation-wide scale, of today's opportunities to invest safely in needed homes under the present favorable conditions.

Despite the fact that the level of general business is making depression history, home building and improvements are forging ahead in an unprecedented manner. The present trend of lack of confidence that has depressed general business has apparently stimulated the home building business—something readily understood in view of the human tendency to think of home and land as tangible things to tie to under generally upset economic and political conditions. However, with the stimulating effects of a nationwide movement for small home building, all business may soon feel beneficial results.

COUNTRY CORRESPONDENCE

Class 1—Local Letters. Sometimes called "news letters" or "locals"; variegated news of a given community, published in successive paragraphs.

Class 2—Country Correspondence. Not Published as Local Letters. This includes straight news stories, published under separate captions or headlines; news or articles dealing with local farm progress and home betterment, interviews, columns of comment or opinion, letters to the editor, and any other form of rural reporting or journalistic writing which is printed not as part of a local letter but as an item in itself.

Each correspondent may submit, or have submitted by others, five different clippings, but not more. The total of five may include clippings in both classes or may be all in one class.

All clippings to be considered in this year's awards must be in the hands of the judges by noon of May 20, 1938. Entries should be addressed to Correspondence Committee, The Country Home Magazine, 250 Park Avenue, New York.

Three awards will be given to the writers of clippings in each of the two classes. There will be a first award in each class of $300; the second award in each class is $100; the third award in each class is $50.

An additional award of $300 and a trip to New York, Washington, and White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia, with all expenses paid, will go to one of these two class winners whose work is adjudged the best of all entries submitted. In other words, the winner of the title, "Best Country Correspondent for 1937-38," will get a total cash award of $600 and will be entertained by The Country Home Magazine in the nation's metropolis; the nation's capital and be a guest of honor at the National Editorial Association at White Sulphur Springs, West Virginia.

Certificates of Merit will be awarded the champion country correspondent of each of the forty-eight states.

BIRDS AND ANIMALS KEEP DOWN INSECTS

The reappearance of insects on the farm about this time of the year might well serve as a reminder that encouragement of desirable species of birds and animals will do much to keep down insect pests.

Such encouragement can readily be afforded these "good neighbors" as a part of the erosion control program on the farm, according to C. B. Anders, state coordinator of the Soil Conservation Service.

Unproductive field and woodland borders, gullies, and other eroded areas unsuited for cultivation provide ideal locations for the planting of adapted shrubs and plants which will serve the dual purpose of controlling erosion and providing food and cover for wildlife.

the use of such areas as turn rows for farm animals and machinery.

Grade Crossings Increase Graves

(By Charles M. Upham)

Horrible grade-crossing accidents in 1937 added 1,875 graves to the cemeteries throughout the nation. Of this number, 1,607 were the result of automobile-train collisions. The remainder involved pedestrians. What's worse, the carnage hasn't diminished so far in 1938.

Hundreds of newspaper stories concerning grade-crossing accidents come across my desk every week. "Death" inevitably finds its way into the headlines of these stories and the words that follow in the paragraphs below always describe a gory scene. Take this one, for example: "Five Die As Passenger Train Crashes Into Car—One of the worst automobile tragedies ever to happen in this community was that of Monday afternoon when five lives were snuffed out instantly when passenger train No. 18 crashed into an automobile about two miles south of here. The five, all members of one family, except a small baby, a grandson, were crushed to death." Here's another, equally as bad, concerning a truck: "Train Hits Truck, Driver Is Killed—Engulfed in flames, the unidentified driver of a truck was killed here today when it was struck by a northbound express train."

Until recent years the entire burden of grade-crossing elimination rested with the state governments. They had difficulty in financing the elimination of the most dangerous crossings and little progress was made. The federal government has, therefore, found it imperative to assume a large part of the responsibility of grade-crossing elimination, reconstruction and protection. On December 31, 1936, there were 234,231 grade crossings on Class 1 roads in the United States. During 1935, 2,071 crossings were eliminated and 887 were added, making a net total of 1,184 eliminations. Prior to 1935 the additions of grade crossings always outnumbered the eliminations. Since 1935, the first gains of eliminations over additions have been registered. There are now 230,000 grade crossings throughout the 48 states.

Oklahoma Congressman Wilburn Cartwright has introduced a bill in the current session of the National Congress to continue federal aid for highways through the fiscal years 1940 and 1941. His bill carries an all-important stipulation concerning grade crossings. It sets aside $50,000,000 for the fiscal year 1940 and the same amount for the fiscal year 1941 "for the elimination of hazards to life at railroad grade crossings on the federal-aid highway system and elsewhere, including the separation or protection of grades at crossings, the reconstruction of existing railroad grade-crossing structures and the relocation of highways to eliminate grade crossings and necessary surveys and plans therefor."

With the number of highway accidents increasing each year and reaching an all-time high of 40,000 in 1937, there can be no more important consideration on the part of Congress at this time than passage of legislation continuing federal aid for building more and better highways. In this added construction there can be no more important activity than the elimination of railroad grade crossings. For, unless the American motoring public obtains increased highway expenditures for the elimination and protection of grade crossings, you may fill a new grave that, figuratively speaking, will be dug by thousands of highway users by the end of this year or next.

MISSISSIPPI FARM NEWS

The increased rains of the past two weeks have damaged early Irish potatoes and truck crops and seriously retarded field farm work. Cover crops on many farms are already too advanced in growth for best results and farmers are anxious to see a return of fair weather so that plowing may be resumed and corn planting started.

This year's production of Irish potatoes and sweet potatoes in the United States may be smaller than the large crop produced this past year, but the 1938 production of truck crops now promises to be larger.

The prospective potato acreage for the country as a whole is about 3 percent below the acreage planted last year, according to the Bureau of Agricultural Economics. But yields in 1937 were materially larger than average. Average yields and abandonment from the acreage now indicated for 1938 would reduce production about 12 percent compared with last year and would result in a potato crop of 345 million bushels. A crop of this size, says the Bureau in its spring outlook report, would likely bring somewhat higher prices and incomes to growers this year.

For sweet potatoes the prospective plantings now indicate an acreage about 1 percent larger than planted in 1937. The areas in which sweet potatoes are grown chiefly for market, however, report smaller planting this year. Last year, sweet potatoes also produced above-average yields. So average yields on the slightly larger acreage now in prospect would mean a smaller production in 1938. And if production is smaller both for sweet potatoes and Irish potatoes, the Bureau foresees somewhat higher prices for sweet potatoes.

For the early planted truck crops and prospective acreage in some of the intermediate and late States, 1938 plantings of truck crops for market are expected to show an increase of 3 percent compared with the acreage planted to these crops last year.

"On April 15th, 1937, I purchased from The McWilliams Adv. Co. of El Dorado, Arkansas, an 8 cu. ft. Servel Electrolux Kerosene Refrigerator. And I am more than pleased with its operation. I have never had any trouble with it and as for the operating expense I don't feel like there has been any for in the past 11 months my kerosene has cost me somewhere in the neighborhood of $15.00. I know now over $15.00; and before purchasing this my ice bill would run $15.00 per month."

"This is to certify that I am the owner and user of a SERVEL ELECTROLUX KEROSENE REFRIGERATOR, which I have operated for the past two and one-half years. This refrigerator has given perfect satisfaction and requires practically no care. I have not been out 10¢ for repairs and it has cost me exactly $15.00 per month to operate. I feel that my Kerosene Electrolux Refrigerator would be the best thing in my house that I would give up, as it serves more than it costs."
